

Educational Outreach

Years 9 - 12

2024

I'm pleased to share with you UNSW's 2024 educational outreach program for students attending our Gateway partner high schools.

At UNSW, we are committed to student equity and improving educational outcomes for students underrepresented in higher education. Core to UNSW's strategy is the objective of transforming our undergraduate population so that it is inclusive of all students regardless of the school they attended or area they grew up in. Our goal is that by 2027, 25% of domestic undergraduate students commencing at UNSW will be from underrepresented backgrounds.

To ensure our community is representative of the broader population, we take a holistic approach to supporting students, from pre-tertiary outreach, to academic, financial and well-being support as they transition to UNSW, through to internship and careers support for graduation and beyond.

Our educational outreach program provides students with academic enrichment opportunities that enhance school-based learning and increase preparedness for and success in higher education. We have brought together a unique set of curriculum-linked learning experiences with an embedded focus on self-efficacy, identifying learning strengths and values-led career choices.

Through our program, we seek to support and extend students' interest in their own learning and focus on higher-order thinking, metacognition, critical analysis and literacy - all essential factors for post-school success. We guide students to develop their learning goals and participate in experiences that are interactive, experiential, and explore a range of contexts that are unique to UNSW. We also provide an equitable pathway to UNSW through the Gateway Admission Pathway and Program.

The following provides a snapshot of our educational outreach program in 2024. We look forward to connecting with you and your students.

Student Story

Tahrima

Western Sydney, NSW

Bachelor of Law/Politics, Philosophy and Economics

Attending university has always been a high priority in my family. At High School I was a really engaged student and took Legal Studies as an elective, but my interest in studying law, and taking a humanitarian path, was sparked by my background and experiences as a migrant.

My mother and I immigrated from Bangladesh in 2007, when I was almost three. We had to use immigration lawyers several times over the years. When I was part way through High School we actually had to go back to Bangladesh and wait for our visa to be reinstated.

I went to Sarah Redfern High School in Minto, in Western Sydney, which was a UNSW Gateway School. My year 12 graduating class had less than 120 students and two pathways: the HSC and a transition pathway. My HSC cohort was pretty small, with just three of us in Extension English by the end, but these small classes were beneficial. There's no doubt my teachers helped me achieve the results I did.

My school's careers advisor was proactive in passing on info on university entry pathways and related programs, which led me to apply for the Gateway Spring and Winter Programs in Year 11 and 12.

The programs offered masterclasses in key subjects like English and Maths and practice papers for the HSC. I found these beneficial because the pandemic lockdowns meant we didn't have formal trial exams, so the HSC was my first official three hour exam for nearly all of my subjects.

After participating in the Gateway Program I was keen to apply for an early conditional offer via the Gateway Admission Pathway because I could see it removed some of the barriers to entry.

I was successful in receiving an early conditional offer with an adjusted ATAR of 85. Having the offer in my pocket gave me the freedom of deciding what I really wanted to do, while knowing that it was possible to get into Law. But I really wanted to make sure that law was right for me, because I knew it was a tough degree.

I landed on UNSW because my cousin who studied there told me about the culture and UNSW offered the double degree I wanted to do, with a focus on politics and International Relations through Politics, Philosophy and Economics.

Only a handful of students from my school ended up at UNSW and, because of the pandemic, I'd never been to UNSW before I started. I was part of a Peer Mentoring program for students who enrolled through the Gateway Admission Pathway. My mentor was so helpful with practical things around how uni works. I also received check-in calls to see how I was going academically and financially - these calls made me feel supported.

Another challenge I faced in getting to uni was that I wasn't yet an Australian citizen, because my citizenship didn't get approved until March 2022 - after uni began. I was able to pay for uni with financial assistance from my grandfather, as well as scholarships. I received a $1,000 UNSW payment, a $5,000 Gateway award and a $5,000 academic achievement scholarship for the highest ATAR in my school.

Right now, I'm in my second year of a combined Bachelor of Law/Politics, Philosophy and Economics. Alongside my studies I work at my old high school two days a week as a student learning support officer. I'm also a University Ambassador allowing me to give back what I received last year.

I know how uni can sometimes feel unachievable from your high school bubble. It looks like a big and scary place. You can feel like you're not good enough. I want to help other students break down those barriers.

Gateway gave me options. It allowed me to look past the stress around whether I could achieve the mark. It gave me freedom, choice and the time to understand that Law was the right degree, and career, for me.

Year 9 Imagined Futures Program

The Imagined Futures unit is a Year 9 English curriculum-linked offering for select Sydney metropolitan schools. It engages students in considering their futures, the future world they will inhabit, and how they want to play a role in shaping it now and into the future.

This future-focused exploration is complimented by the development of students' reflexive practice and metacognitive strategies for improved awareness of learning and capacity to navigate perceptions of themselves as learners for future study.

The unit commences with an exciting on-campus day at UNSW, followed by in-school delivery by English teachers and UNSW University Ambassadors who function as both facilitators and relatable models of future possibilities for students.

Gateway Admission Pathway

We know that the ATAR alone is not the only measure of students' academic potential or success at university. The Gateway Admission Pathway is an alternative entry to UNSW for eligible Year 12 students which provides early entry or a significantly lower ATAR entry requirement for a range of degrees.

Who is eligible?

To be eligible for the Gateway Admission Pathway, students must:

- Be an Australian resident
- Be completing an Australian Year 12 qualification in the year of application
- Attend a Gateway school or live in a low-socioeconomic area based on IRSAD and IEO indexes of SEIFA

How does it work?

Students apply through the Gateway portal by submitting a written personal statement that answers three questions about themselves. The applications are assessed based on students' personal statements and Year 11 results. Successful students will receive either an early offer or early conditional offer for their chosen UNSW degree.

What is the difference between an early offer and early conditional offer?

Early offers for a UNSW degree are made in Round 1 and only require a student to complete the HSC and attain an ATAR (regardless of the result).

Early conditional offers require students to complete the HSC and achieve the Gateway Adjusted ATAR for their chosen UNSW degree.

The Gateway Adjusted ATARs provide students with a significantly lower ATAR than the lowest selection rank.

When do applications close and when are offers released?

In 2024, there will be two offer rounds for the Gateway Admission Pathway:

Round 1: early offers and early conditional offers

Applications open - April 2024
Applications close - July 2024
Offers released - September 2024

Round 2: early conditional offers

Applications open - September 2024
Applications close - November 2024
Offers released - December 2024

Firm offers, post ATAR release: December 2024

Please check out our website in early 2024 when specific dates are released.

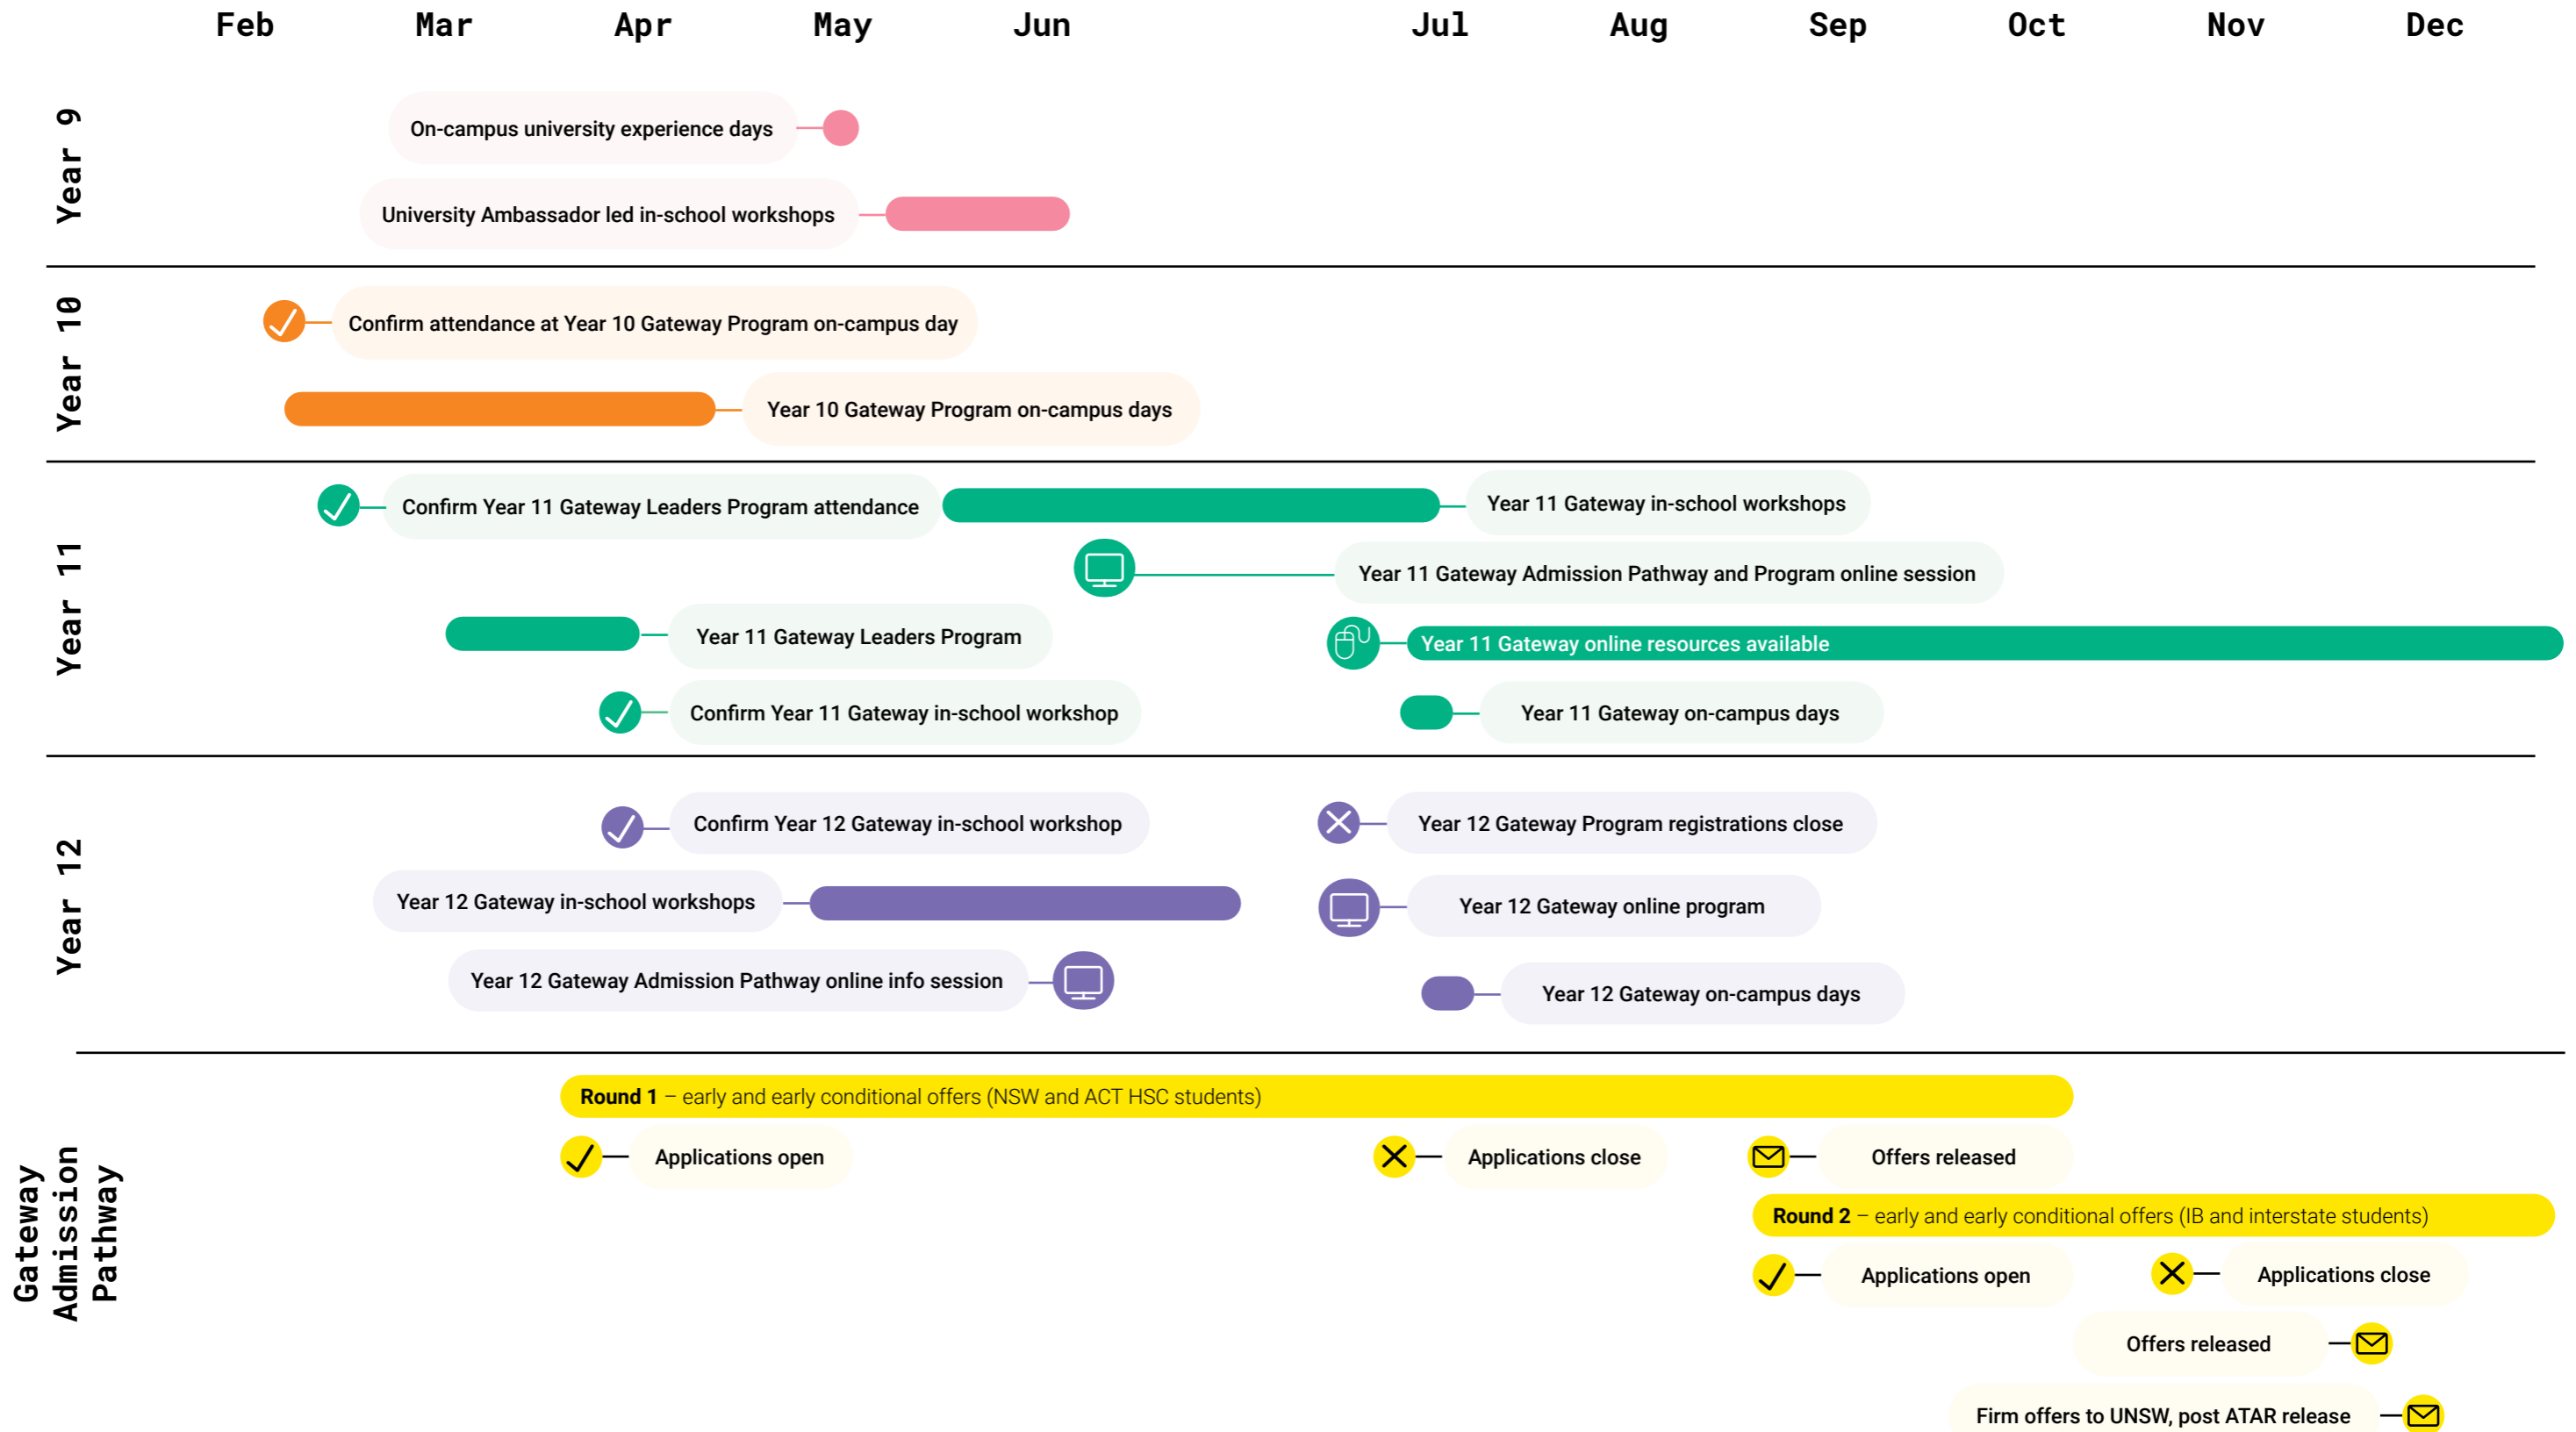

Ongoing support

Students who come to UNSW through the Gateway Admission Pathway are prioritised for scholarships and receive exclusive access to ongoing academic and transition support.

Complimentary outreach opportunities at UNSW Sydney

Students can access further opportunities through the UNSW Future Students Team that complement the UNSW Gateway Educational Outreach Programs. Years 10 – 12 can participate in on-campus faculty workshops, campus tours, degree information sessions in-school and online.
